Short Answer Questions

1. If you had unlimited resources, what changes would you make to Detroit's city parks so that they can better serve the Detroit community?
2. How do you think that Detroit youth can make a difference in their own communities?
3. Tell us about a time that you worked with a group to complete a project and explain at least one thing that you learned about teamwork from that experience?
4. There are many different kinds of jobs. Why are you interested in working in the field of environmental conservation?

CLC Program

The Detroit Conservation Leadership Corps (DCLC) is a six- week summer youth employment program focusing on environmental stewardship, leadership development, teamwork and exposure to local and regional careers in the green industry. Within the DCLC, Detroit youth work in teams on a variety of different environmental conservation projects in Detroit city parks and neighborhood green spaces. Projects include trail and park maintenance, habitat restoration, vacant lot reclamation projects and urban agriculture. In addition to work on team projects, DCLC youth members will attend weekly Environmental Education field trips which include outdoor recreation, conservation and career readiness activities.

Youth participants will also learn about environmental literacy and environmental justice. If you have questions, please contact Amit Weitzer and Linsey Gillery at DetroitCLC2013Info@googlegroups.com

Green Corps Program

The Green Corps is an eight- week summer youth employment program focusing on offering Detroit youth rewarding summer employment that provides a solid education in green jobs, civil and environmental engineering, and an understanding of philanthropy. Crew members have the opportunity to complete projects, learn valuable job skills, individual responsibility, and youth leadership while nurturing greening projects and maintaining trees. Green Corps youth will work in teams on a variety of different projects, while also maintaining trees in Detroit city parks and neighborhood green spaces . Green Corps members will attend weekly Environmental Education field trips, soft-skill training and out door recreation activities.
